REMEMBER THE WHITE HORSE IN FRONT.

FOREIGNERS IN PHOENIX

They Are Being Unearthed by the School Tax Collector.

Henry Drane, who is engaged in the accumulation of the school tax is making the discovery that there are a great many foreigners in town who disclaim any responsibility for the maintenance of the school system of Arizona. It must not be supposed that Mr. Drane is holding up the tourists and other transient visitors who make up so much of the winter population.

In the course of his official wanderings he finds men employed as clerks in stores, and now and then one engaged in business on his own account in a small way. They resent the advances of the collector and tell him that Phoenix is not their abiding home; that they are sojourners in a strange land; they may be here six months and they may not; anyway they are not citizens of the territory.

In vain Mr. Drane points out to them that they are taking up the room of good tax paying Arizonians and that for the good of the community they had better go back to Missouri, Ohio, Indiana or to any other foreign principality or power to which they acknowledge allegiance.

He has a catechism which he applies to all who refuse to pay the school tax. It is: "Are you a member of the militia or of any fire department? Are you an insane person or a cripple? Are you an Indian?" If these questions are answered in the negative Mr. Drane remarks: "Then you ought to pay the school tax. Even the Chinamen pay it."

Speaking of the refusal of persons who are living here during the winter months, enjoying the privileges of citizens and claiming a residence in some other state, recalls a suggestion regarding the Phoenix high school, or rather the Union high school, which will probably be incorporated into a bill to be presented to the next legislature. The defeat of the bond proposition last Friday made some of the citizens of Phoenix think of it. The proposition was defeated by the country vote. A good many who voted against it never wanted a voice in the affairs of the high school. Neither did they want to help support it or enjoy any of its benefits. They were forced into the district against their will.

It is now proposed to disband the district and make the high school the Phoenix high school. It is shown that the taxable valuation of the high school district is only about $5,000,000, very little more than the valuation of Phoenix school district No. 1. The burden now borne by the country could be transferred to the city, and would hardly be felt. Those living in the country desiring to patronize the high school could do so by paying tuition. Then the fall, winter and spring terms are attended by children of parents whose homes are in the east and whose taxes, if any, are paid there. It is proposed to arrange matters so that the school will be free to only the children of actual residents of Phoenix school district No. 1.

THE WORLD'S FAIR BOARD

Its Report Submitted to the Governor Yesterday.

The report of the board of managers for Arizona of the Louisiana purchase exposition was submitted to Governor Brodie yesterday. It states that two car loads of material have been collected for the mineral exhibit, and that one car load is made up of the agricultural, horticultural and educational exhibit. The work of transporting all this to St. Louis will be begun at once. The report shows that the exhibits have been collected at a cost of $5,165. This includes all the expenses of the board, and, in fact, all the expenditures made by it except for the Arizona building, which cost $3,100. The former board had expended $580. There was at the disposal of the board the proceeds of the bond issue voted by the Twenty-first legislature. The issue authorized was $30,000. The bonds were sold at a premium of seven per cent, netting the territory $32,100. There remains of the proceeds $22,450. The greater part or all of this sum will be exhausted in caring for the exhibits after their installation. Arrangements have been made with the railroads for the carrying of the exhibits free.

The building of Arizona, while by no means the most expensive of the state and territorial buildings, but, on the contrary, perhaps the cheapest, will be not least the attractive. It is built in the mission style, and is therefore unlike any other architecture that will be seen at St. Louis. The building cost a little more money than the board had counted upon. It was intended to give it an imposing front and to spend as little on the sides and back as possible. It was thought it would be possible to utilize the adjoining buildings to cover the sides. If the locations chosen for those adjoining buildings had been retained that arrangement would have been all right, but some change was made by which the sides and the rear of the Arizona building would be exposed to the public gaze. It therefore became necessary to make it longer and to pay a little more attention to ornamentation.

My! but it's good—Toboggan Maple Syrup.

COPPER QUEEN ADDS FIFTY MEN.

Mining Force Still Being Increased, and the End is Not Yet.

Another large sized addition to the force of employees at the Copper Queen mines was effected yesterday and Sunday says the Bisbee Review. This time there were employed fifty men, who were given positions in the various parts of the mines. Nearly all of the men engaged are miners, and their employment in a large measure reduces the over-supply of labor caused hereabouts by the suspension of operations at various properties where further exploratory work is to be done by the diamond drills.

The addition of these extra fifty men now places the Copper Queen's enrollment of employees to slightly over the thirteen hundred mark, which is a small sized army in itself, and represents an outlay in salaries each month of more than $150,000. And this is not likely to be the end of extra labor to be engaged by the company in the near future, as the mines will be required to produce a larger output when the company places its new Douglas smelter in commission. That time is not so far away, as it is expected that the smelters will be blown in about June first.

In the face of these facts none will doubt that the Copper Queen operations in the future will outstrip all of the company's records of the past, in point of amount of production and also regarding the amount of profits to be made for the owners. And all of Bisbee hopes that these good things will continue for long years to come.

You don't know what you're missing if you haven't tried Toboggan.
